

Student Risk Screening Scale (SRSS) Coordinator Training

The Student Risk Screening Scale (SRSS) is a universal screening tool used three times a year to identify students who are at risk for challenging behaviors. Educators use the data to design supports needed for students to be academically successful in school. This screening tool consists of eleven (secondary) to twelve (elementary) items that teachers use to rate their classroom of students based on the teacher's current knowledge with clear evidence of each individual student's behavior.

Target Audience

Schools are asked to conduct universal screening using the SRSS coming off of the MIBLSI Intervention Systems training or Promoting Positive School Climate (PPSC) Tier 2 Behavior Supports training. Previous participants have found it helpful to attend with a partner from their district or ISD to make the most of the planning time that is available in the training.
